SAVERS HAVE BIG AMOUNT TO SPEND IN THIS LOCALITY

Checks Have Been Mailed From Farmers Bank and Bristol Trust Company

4351 PEOPLE TO BENEFIT

Merchants of Vicinity Look for Increased Business; Much Spent at Home

Christmas Club checks are now in the hands of the thrifty residents of this section who have been frugal enough to lay aside each week a stipulated sum so that they would have money to spend at the Christmas season. The season is now here and Bristol merchants are offering outstanding values to the thrifty residents of this community.

A total of approximately $150,146.10 will be paid out this year in Christmas Club checks by the three banks in this section, namely: Bristol Trust Company, Farmers National Bank of Bucks County, and Cornwells State Bank.

The total of checks to be mailed by Bristol Trust Company will approximate $80,000, this sum being divided between 2,675 people. The majority of the recipients of such live in Bristol or surrounding territory; but some of the checks will be forwarded to points in Texas and Illinois.

Some families hold cards worth in the aggregate $1,000. All checks were mailed from the trust company yesterday, the majority reaching the savers today.

New club of the Bristol Trust Company opens today, and early indications show that many are retaining their interest in this fine manner of saving money, and many new names are already on the trust company's list.

The trust company's Christmas Club is this year and has been for years the largest club in Bucks County. A comparison of the clubs of the trust company during the past few years is here given:

The club of 1911 and 1912 had 292 accounts and paid in cash $4,438.96.
The club of 1912 and 1913 had 876 accounts and paid in cash $16,290.36.
The club of 1913 and 1914 had 1,756 accounts and paid in cash $33,715.
The club of 1914 and 1915 had 2,541 accounts and paid in cash $46,892.67.
The club of 1915 and 1916 had 2,698 accounts and paid in cash $59,358.63.
The club of 1916 and 1917 had 3,181 accounts and paid in cash $67,171.11.
The club of 1917 and 1918 had 2,478 accounts and paid in cash $36,171.11.

FAITH BALDWIN'S NEW SERIAL PROVES HIGH AND LOW SOCIETY GIRLS CAN SWAP PLACES WITH EASE

There's a good deal of truth in the old saying about "Judith O'Grady and the Colonel's lady" being "sisters under the skin."

Faith Baldwin's latest dramatic serial plunges a gangster girl into the lives of a family of culture and wealth—and she holds her own with the best of them!

Fanchon Meredith, fleeing her past among the gangsters of a big city, strikes up acquaintance with a lovely debutante occupying the seat across from Fanchon in a big trans-continental plane. The plane meets disaster—and Fanchon finds she is the sole survivor.

Fanchon sees her big chance—and boldly takes it. She assumes the name and clothes of her dead friend and goes on to enact the rest of the role. The "aunt" who has never seen her before, the cousin who had always disliked the girl Fanchon is impersonating, are two whom the gangster girl must fool.

She succeeds—and for a while it looks as if her wildest dreams of happiness are going to materialize. Then the old life overtakes her, with a whirling suddenness which takes her breath. She is caught—a faker, an impostor.

How Fanchon extricates herself from this exciting situation is told in the characteristic warm Faith Baldwin manner—without a pause in the march of thrills. Read the first absorbing chapter of "Masquerade" Dec. 10th in the Courier.

Returns to Home Here After Circling Globe

A remarkable tour around the world was brought to its close by the return Saturday of Fred Kring, Jr., to the home of his parents on Pond street.

Mr. Kring left the United States in the early part of the year, when he took passage at Vancouver for Japan, from whence he proceeded to China and via Singapore to Sumatra. After spending three months in the interior of Sumatra, he proceeded via Aden (Arabia) to Egypt and to Europe. After an extended stay in Roumania his itinerary led through Austria and Germany to Paris and London. The crossing of the Atlantic from Southampton to New York completed the circling of the globe.

Mr. Kring gives a fascinating description of his experiences and of the impressions he received of the many foreign lands he visited.

MORRISVILLE DEFERS AWARDED CONTRACT

Council Wants to Study the Financing of Standpipe Construction

OTHER TOWN AFFAIRS

MORRISVILLE, Dec. 1.—At an adjourned meeting of Common Council it was voted to defer the awarding of the contract for the new standpipe for a week or 10 days to determine how the proposition would be financed. It was announced that McClinck and Marshall Corporation, of Bethlehem, was low bidder for the standpipe and painting with $10,029.

If sandblasting is considered then Petroleum Iron Works, of Philadelphia, is low bidder. For the foundation and laying of the mains, Albert Ellis, of Moorestown, N. J., was low with $7,056.80 as his figure.

Charles H. Baker, of Trenton, one of the owners of the Washington Heights Realty Company, appeared before Council and asked that he be reimbursed for the water mains his company laid on this tract 11 years ago when the borough was not financially able to do so. Baker stated he or his company expended nearly $4,000 for this work. He also added that he only had a verbal agreement with the councilmen in office then that when the return in water runs on this tract warranted it, Council would make restitution. Council promised to investigate the matter but added that the present members would have to go by the records and not merely by hearsay. Baker requested that Council apply this money, which he said is due him, to the bill the borough has against him for the street, sidewalk and gutter improvements to his holdings on Washington Heights.

Council went on record as protesting against the service given by the trolley company between Morrisville and Bristol and the secretary was authorized to notify the company of this action. Communication was received from the State Highway Department asking for entire jurisdiction over the opening of streets which were State roads. The matter was referred to committee for investigation.

Councilman Lynch, of the Sanitation and Poor Committee, reported that a number of men had been put to work for the borough and for the school district through the Relief Committee.

Councilman Allen, chairman of the Water Committee, announced that employees of the Water Works had volunteered to give one per cent of their wages to the relief of the unemployed.

THANKSGIVING BALL AND BRIDGE OF HONOR CONDUCTED AT DOYLESTOWN ARMORY BY SEA SCOUTS OF BUCKS COUNTY SATURDAY NIGHT

Has Become Popular Means of Encouraging Advancement Among Older Boys — Badges Presented to Several — All Parts of Bucks County Represented

The Thanksgiving Ball and Bridge of Honor of the Bucks County Sea Scouts was held in the Sixth Regiment Armory at Doylestown on Saturday evening. Nearly 100 were present. Attendance at these annual affairs is restricted, and everyone attends in evening clothes or official uniform. Supported by the Sea Scouts, the ball has become a popular means of encouraging advancement among the older boys, who must be 15 years of age to join.

The Armory floor contained the outline of a vessel under way with running lights lit, and a ship's bell chiming the half hour. The vessel was decorated in a true salty fashion with flags, and colored bulbs. At the bow of the ship there were arranged comfortable deck chairs, providing convenient seats for all. The balcony of the Armory drill shed was decorated to represent the officers' bridge, and served as the bridge of honor.

As the Sea Scouts, and their leaders arrived they were met by a receiving line of Assistant Scout Executive W. Fred Hauser, Skipper and Mrs. Robert Sergeant, Commodore and Mrs. Thos. B. Stockham, and Regional Scout Executive and Mrs. Roy F. Seymour, with the strains of "Anchors Aweigh" at 8:45 p. m., the grand march formally opened the program.

Six dance numbers preceded the bridge of honor. During the honor ceremony a number of awards were made. Refreshments concluded the short intermission, and six more dance numbers were enjoyed. The "taps" ceremony was deeply impressive, and proved to be very inspirational.

During the bridge of honor which was in charge of Commodore Thos. B. Stockham of Morrisville, Thomas F. Doylestown presented Ordinary Sea Scout badges to: William E. Adams, Charles Burgess, Jack Burgess, Clarence Landis, and W. Simmons, Jr., of the "Robert Morris" of Morrisville; R. J. Unruh and Wayne Warner, of the "Elks" of Bristol; E. MEN SEE 'CONSTRUCTION' OF WASHINGTON BRIDGE

E. W. Downs Also Gives Some Comparison to New Span Across Delaware

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

An excellent moving picture, "The Bridge Supreme," featuring the actual construction of the George Washington bridge, spanning the Hudson River at New York City, was shown to 150 men at the First Baptist Church, here, last evening.

The films were shown through courtesy of Thomas Collier, the lecturer being E. W. Downs.

The five reels gave to the men an idea of the monstrosity of the project, and the "spinning" of the wire for the main cables which when finished are 36 inches in diameter, was of interest to all. In the entire bridge are 105,000 miles of wire.

Original plans were formulated in 1921, and changed a few years later. A survey of traffic in the vicinity of 178th street was made; and when completed the bridge will handle 30,000,000 automobiles annually. Ground was first broken on the New York side in May of 1927. Total cost to date is approximately $60,000,000. Plans may yet be changed to include passage of trains.

Ten contractors are working on this gigantic project.

In comparing the George Washington bridge with the bridge spanning the Delaware River here, Mr. Downs stated that the New York structure is 3,500 feet long, while the local one is 1,750 feet in length. The Delaware bridge roadway is 135 feet from the water; while that of the one across the Hudson is 255 feet high.

The Brotherhood of the Church sponsored the program. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

Sedan Used by Quartet Said to Be Minus Rear Registration Tag — Men Described As Being Between 24 and 35 Years of Age — Truck Owned by Lavine Co. of Trenton

A truck and trailer loaded with merchandise and silk valued at $25,000 was hi-jacked at Penn Valley, along the Lincoln Highway, this morning and the driver of the truck kidnapped until he had been driven into Bristol Township near Newportville, where he was released.

The truck driver, John McNamara, 29, Trenton, N. J., is unable to give a very definite description of the four men who abducted him. The truck is owned by Lavine Trucking Company, Trenton, N. J.

According to the story told by McNamara, he was driving up the hill at Penn Valley on the Lincoln Highway with truck and trailer both loaded with merchandise and silk. The speed of the truck was slow due to the grade, and as he slowly ascended the hill four men in a dark colored sedan forced him into a ditch and with drawn guns ordered him off the truck.

Two of the men grabbed McNamara and forced him into the sedan while the other two jumped on the truck and drove off. McNamara was driven by a circuitous route into Bristol Township near Newportville where he was thrown out.

The sedan used by the hi-jackers was minus the rear registration tag and the driver is described as being short and stocky. One of the four wore a dark overcoat and brown hat. All four men are said to have been between the ages of 24 and 35 years of age.

SIMPLE WORDS

Is it true that the English language is about to be transformed into a language of short words, spoken with a rapid, staccato utterance? That is the dismal prospect, or pleasant prospect—depending on the way one looks at such things—suggested by a noted philologist, and there is evidence in support of that conclusion.

A language which has dispensed with inflection is on the way to "monosyllabism"—a word which goes comfortably far to correct the tendency which it names. Then there is also the subtle influence of slang, which tends always to invent a short, sharp substitute for any word that places the least strain on the tongue and wind; and popular custom inevitably adopts itself to the line of least resistance. Then again there is the influence of the vernacular, which is becoming more and more potent, thanks to its vivid, picturesque and humorous quality, which so easily disarms resentment of its vulgarity.

It is easy to believe that the tendency toward monosyllabism is stronger in English than in any other language. Any one who dabbles in verse making is painfully aware of the difficulty of avoiding those strings of monosyllables which are so fatal to rhythm and cadence.

And yet there may be hope. For whatever may be the syllabic degeneration of their language, the English-speaking peoples retain their simple affection for long words. And, after all, the habit of using simple words for simple things isn't all bad.

PARING THE BUDGET

Budget paring at Washington seems to be accomplishing something in the way of reduced national expenditure. It does not promise to cut billions from a budget of $4,647,000,000 but the President has already guaranteed a $350,000,000 reduction in departmental expenditures next year.

Considering that almost 50 per cent of the national budget is for interest, sinking fund, veterans' service and other fixed charges, this is an excellent start. It is especially reassuring since it carries with it the pledge that there will be no impairment of the efficiency of the various government departments.

These economies will not balance the national budget for the next fiscal year, but they will make the inevitable additional tax levy that much lighter. Congress can appreciate that for it does not relish the thought of burdening the people with more taxes.

Contrary to popular belief, this is not the most propitious time for effecting governmental economies. Every government employee dropped from the payroll adds one more to the army of unemployed. Many bureaus and departments cannot reduce their requisitions upon the Federal Treasury without curtailing programs providing work for persons who otherwise would be unemployed.

Congress and the administration must assume the responsibility of finding the happy medium.

So live that the last paragraph of your obituary will not begin, "Nevertheless."

CHAPTER LV

Jim heard the news with relief. "Tomorrow if possible we'll run over to Monksilver ourselves," he said. "That mysterious fish, it must have some definite meaning. Probably quite a simple explanation. Anyway, I want to have a shot at solving it myself."

"Well, good hunting," said Ilsham. "I hope soon to be able to congratulate you, Miss Faring, on the recovered possession of your family jewels."

He shook hands with Milly and Katharine. Jim and Bill walked with him to the gate.

"I suppose you won't call in the local police over this raid?" Ilsham said.

"Hardly worth while in the circumstances," said Bill.

"No, it would hardly serve much purpose now. The big fish will soon be in the net. Oh, I'm not talking idly."

DIRECT

"Look here," said Jim bluntly, "you've rather mystified us tonight, Ilsham. Haven't you got anything to tell us before you go?"

Ilsham gave a little shrug.

"I'm not playing at mystery for mystery's sake. Only—well, I'd rather leave explanations until after tomorrow."

"Why tomorrow?"

"Oh, because tomorrow may prove a rather uneventful day. Ilsham said mysteriously. He added abruptly: "I've already guessed, of course, why I'm down here? For no other reason than to bring to book one of the most sinister figures of the criminal world."

"You mean Martell?"

"Martell, of course. The dominant figure in the far-reaching evil network of which Beggar's Court has become the center. Oh, not this conspiracy against Severn—something utterly apart from that. Will it surprise you when I say that your friend, Severn, only comes, as it were, incidentally into my business with Martell? I was out on the trail after Martell before I had ever heard Severn's name—a trail that led from Sing Sing to this quiet English village."

Ilsham paused, as if he had told all he meant to tell. Then suddenly: "Night after night I've been watching in the grounds of Beggar's Court, playing spy—and though those rogues had come to suspect an elusive unknown someone, they never suspected me." And Ilsham gave a little laugh, rather a grim laugh. "My lameness was an effective disguise. Tonight, as you saw, I deliberately exposed a bit of my hand—let 'em see I wasn't really lame. Oh, they tumbled to the significance of that!"

"But why put them on their guard?" asked Bill puzzled.

"Call it a sudden whim if you like," was the smiling careless answer. "For I had nothing to gain by it—except the satisfaction of seeing that first shiver of fear creep into their faces, the sudden realization of a danger at their very elbow that they had never dreamed of. If you knew Martell's record you wouldn't wonder that I was tempted to allow myself that satisfaction."

There was sudden smoldering passion behind the cold, hard voice, touched by what intense personal feeling in that deadly enmity it reflected.

VEHEMENT

"A man like that—my God, he deserves to suffer!" Ilsham broke out vehemently. "Tonight I decided that he and his fellow scoundrels should see the shadow of the end suddenly stretching out to touch them with its chill. They'll walk now with fear always at their side until—what's coming to them soon. I might have only a personal satisfaction to gain—but I had nothing to lose by showing my hand. The end's so near now, so certain, so inescapable! For those two men there's—tomorrow coming."

They had reached the garden gate. Ilsham held out his hand. Evidently he did not mean to explain himself or say any more.

"Just now you said the trail led you from Sing Sing," Bill remarked abruptly. "About a year back I happened to go over Sing Sing. I have an oddly retentive memory for faces—and I remember one man there who the governor told me was in for life. The curious thing is that man is now out of prison."

Ilsham looked hard at him for a moment, then gave a short laugh. "Your memory is better than mine."

In this case, Mr. Grayson, for I don't remember you on the occasion you speak of. Well, I may have something to tell you about that, too, after tomorrow."

He passed through the gate and strode toward his cottage. Bill's puzzled eyes followed the tall figure as it disappeared in the mist.

"Who and what the deuce is Ilsham?" Bill said. "Knows how to play a lone hand and keep mum anyway."

Then he shrugged his shoulders.

"Well, so long as this sinister circle of his smashed and Severn rescued whether by Ilsham's efforts or ours—what's the odds? But I wonder what the big thing is he's promised us for tomorrow?"

Last night's fog had gone and the world outside his bedroom window was agleam with mellow Autumn sunlight. Just the sort of day to have spent uninterrupted with Katharine, was Jim's first waking thought, as he opened his eyes to the shaft of gold quivering in between the drawn curtains.

To have set out in the car as soon as breakfast was over for a long day together, just he and Katharine, with no more settled plan than to follow the lines of the telegraph poles into the unknown and fetch up for lunch somewhere, anywhere, in the next county but one—

Jim pulled himself out of the delightful train of thought with a regretful sigh.

No such luck for him. With this new definite turn of events, that worrying business at Beggar's Court was too urgent for a truant day with Katharine. Not only was he seeing Detective Inspector Haste that afternoon; there was the question of Martin. That his warning in that quarter had not fallen on deaf ears Jim felt pretty sanguine. Last night Martin had been very near the breaking point of panic-surrender. Within the next hour or two Martin might ring him up.

EXPECTANT

Besides, if Ilsham were a reliable prophet, something big and momentous affecting the case was on the very eve of happening.

No, he and Katharine would have to wait.

Jim raced through the business of dressing, with the alluring thought in his mind of a snatched ten minutes alone with Katharine before breakfast.

It was almost difficult to realize that less than a week ago, so crowded a week it had been, they had met for the first time after more than two years—and Katharine had even forgotten his name. And now she had promised to marry him. Jim smiled very contentedly at his soap lathered face in the mirror as he shaved. Even yet his luck seemed almost too wonderful to be true.

As he left his room Jim ran into Milly. She and Bill had been told the news, of course, and equally, of course, both had been delighted—though it was hardly news that had come as a surprise to Milly.

"I think I saw Katharine in the gar—in just now, Jimmy," she told him, to add smilingly: "Try not to be more than ten minutes late for breakfast, you two."

Jim made no rash promises. He ran downstairs and out into the garden to Katharine. At the sound of his footsteps she turned with quick eagerness. The wind that had blown the fog out to sea had brought an entrancing color to her face; the split gold of the sunlight seemed to play hide and seek in the dusky shadows of her hair.

"Oh, my beautiful!" he whispered, as for a moment his arms went round her with a little thrill, his eyes on the flushed loveliness of her face. "I feel as if someone—you—had made me a present of the world!"

HAPPY

She gave a little happy laugh like breathless broken music.

"It's dear of you to think so, Jim!" she told him softly. Then in gay smiling reproach: "But why did you wait till five minutes to breakfast time to tell me?"

"Too bad that you should have so laggard a lover, darling!" he agreed. "But anyway Milly's given us ten minutes grace—and she knows that we shall steal another ten at least to add to 'em. So that is all right."

They wandered down the long garden towards the estuary that bounded it, happy as children, with Mike the terrier making a rather bored third. For once no one seemed to be taking any notice of him at all. From afar came the sound of the gong for breakfast, and Mike seemed surprised that neither Katharine nor Jim appeared to pay any heed to its summons. He panted, watching them expectantly, waiting for them to turn, then at last as if losing patience, trotted back solemnly towards the house alone. If breakfast meant nothing to them, there was none of that nonsense about Mike.

"But surely our stolen ten minutes must be up, Jim?" cried Katharine presently, as a distant clock chimed.

And almost simultaneously from the top of the garden Milly's voice hailed them.

"Hello! Breakfast ready, I suppose? Just coming."

"Oh, breakfast's been over ages!" Milly cried smilingly. "You're wanted on the telephone. Someone who won't give his name."

Was it Martin? Eagerly Jim betook himself to the house, snatched up the receiver.

"Hello, Mr. Wynter speaking. Who are you?"

"Martin." The husky, frightened voice was almost unrecognizable. "I've decided to—to do what you asked, Mr. Wynter. Can I come to see you tonight about six?"

"Yes—if you can't make it earlier," "I want to come after dusk falls," the hurried voice went on. "I haven't been speaking to you, or they might suspect. I'm not sure they don't suspect something as it is. They've just gone out, and I've snatched this chance of speaking. I've decided to tell all I know—about Mr. Severn—where he is—everything. But I haven't talk any longer now—they might come back suddenly, and find me at the telephone. I'll come by boat to Manorways, Mr. Wynter. It will be safest as I might be seen going in at your gate."

"That's all right. But at least you can tell me now. Where is Mr. Severn being kept a prisoner?" said Jim urgently.

But no answer came. Already the terrified man at the other end had rung off.

STATE NEWS

CHARLOTTE, Dec. 1.—(INS)—Ross VanKirk, Washington County farmer, opines the depression has not been accompanied by any slump in neighborhood.

VanKirk and his son were patients in Washington Hospital. Their recovery was hastened with the news that their neighbors had stepped in and husked 20 acres of corn on his farm.

Forty men, under the leadership of Robert C. Sharp and the Rev. Donald M. Grant, went to VanKirk's farm early one morning and by three o'clock in the afternoon had completed the "good samaritan" act.

NORRISTOWN, Dec. 1.—(INS)—The Corpus Schwenkfeldianorum, literary project of the Schwenkfelder Church started in 1884, will be completed in 17 volumes by 1934.

This is the announcement of the Rev. Dr. E. E. S. Johnson, editor-in-chief of the work. The occasion will mark the 200th anniversary of the arrival of Schwenkfelders in Pennsylvania from Germany.

The Corpus will be a memorial to the founder of the denomination, Caspar Von Schwenkfeld, and to the fathers who sacrificed all their earthly goods in their religious convictions.

Two staff members in Washington are working steadily to complete the project. Before the work is finished the Schwenkfelders will have spent $200,000 on the venture.

HAVERFORD, Dec. 1.—(INS)—Sir Herbert B. Ames, former financial director of the League of Nations secretariat and authority on international affairs, will give a lecture at Haverford College here on December 1 under the auspices of the International Relations Club of the college. It is expected his subject will be some aspect of the disarmament question, or the permanent court of international relations.

Miss Gertrude Roberts, the daughter of Mrs. George Roberts, Jr., of Mill and Cedar streets, spent Monday in New York, as the guest of Miss "Pat" Rose, who is a co-student of Miss Roberts at the Maryland College for Young Women, Md.

The club of 1920 and 1921 had 3,256 accounts and paid in cash $74,123.17. The club of 1921 and 1922 had 2,718 accounts and paid in cash $78,665.89. The club of 1922 and 1923 had 3,218 accounts and paid in cash $102,029.03. The club of 1923 and 1924 had 3,424 accounts and paid in cash $114,257.71. The club of 1924 and 1925 had 2,942 accounts and paid in cash $96,024.99. The club of 1925 and 1926 had 2,729 accounts and paid in cash $98,090. The club of 1928 and 1929 had 2,397 accounts and paid in cash $93,717.25. The club of 1929 and 1930 had 2,700 accounts, and paid in cash $98,557.65. The decrease in several of the clubs of the county this year is traced directly to lack of employment in many localities.

The $51,146.10 to be paid out by the Farmers National Bank will be divided among 1300 people. These checks range in value from $12.50 to $250.00, and were mailed yesterday.

There is a slight decrease in the sum being paid out this year by the Farmers National Bank also. The club ending in 1930 amounted to $55,000. The amounts other years since the inauguration in 1924 were as follows: club ending in 1925, nearly $30,000; 1926, $39,351.72; 1927, $40,137.88; 1928, $45,312.87; 1929, approximately $50,000.

The Christmas Club was instituted at the Cornwells State Bank about 10 years ago, and a steady, substantial growth was manifest for years. In the year just ending 376 people are sharing in the check values.

The checks, from $12.50 to $250, are valued in the aggregate at $19,000. These are all to be sent to people in Cornwells Heights or within a radius of a few miles.

Owing to the unemployment situation the club dropped slightly this year, the sum being paid out being about $3500 less than that of last December. The new club at this bank is now open for 1931-1932.

A good Christmas is looked for in Bristol and surrounding territory, as it is believed that following the policy of previous years the recipients of Christmas Club checks will spend money in the local stores. Some will save portions of the sums received, while the majority will use the money for Christmas gifts and celebrations. Last year and in previous years Bristol merchants noticed a decided increase in business with the receiving of checks from the clubs; and a goodly Christmas boom is looked for by many, beginning today.

Sound Motion Picture Being Shown in Seal Drive

The coach scene on the 1931 Christmas Seal is dramatized in a short sound motion picture being shown in Bucks County theatres.

This picture is shown through arrangements made by the Bucks County Tabernacles Society with managers of the theatres. It will be exhibited in Bristol, December 2nd, to December 11th.

An animated picture of Santa Claus sleigh with a Christmas Seal on the side opens the picture. A team of six reindeer are hitched to the sleigh. This historic picture of childhood, "The Night Before Christmas," reveals Old St. Nicholas driving over the snow covered house tops to the tune of Jingle Bells. He cracks his whip at the men in the moon and the stars break into the words, Merry Christmas. The Seal dissolves into a full screen Seal, which in turn dissolves into a real coach and four passing along a snow covered country road.

William H. Vanderbilt drove his coach, Venture, for this scene. A party of visitors to Mr. Vanderbilt's estate at Oakland Farms at Newport occupies the top of the coach. Mr. Vanderbilt is shown directing the coach along the winding roads leading up to the house while the coach horn announces the arrival of the guests.

Mary Brewster has the seat of honor and as the coach stops the guard climbs down from the rear seat and places the ladder for Miss Brewster to descend. She speaks a short message about Christmas Seals, the good they do, and why they should be used on every letter, Christmas card and package.

The Venture, which was built in 1901 and is considered one of the finest examples of English road coaches, was shipped to England in 1908 by Alfred G. Vanderbilt, father of the present owner, and placed on the run between London and Brighton.

Mr. Vanderbilt, who is only 32, when touring often travels in his own club coach, which he drives himself much of the time.

HULMEVILLE

The week-end was enjoyed by Harold Daseburg, of Bellevue avenue, at the home of his parents, in Archbald. Mr. Daseburg's sister, Miss Muriel Daseburg, returned to Hulmeville with him, and is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Daseburg here for a few days.

12 GOOD REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD USE KOPPERS COKE For Heating Your Home

1. More Heat—
No matter how cold the weather, Koppers Coke will give you heat and plenty of it.
2. Quicker Heat—
A touch of the damper starts it. No waiting. No coaxing. Heat comes fast. It's nice, steady heat, too. Heat that keeps every nook and corner warm as toast all day.
3. Steadier Heat—
Even though it gives better results, Koppers Coke costs you much less than the solid fuels you burned before.
4. Costs Less To Buy—
Even though it gives better results, Koppers Coke costs you much less than the solid fuels you burned before.
5. Costs Less To Burn—
It's more economical to burn, too. Altogether you will save at least two dollars out of every ten you need to spend.
6. Fewer Ashes—
You'll be surprised how little waste this improved fuel gives. A little pail holds all the ashes the average family gets in a week.
7. Less Shoveling—
Because it gives less waste, Koppers Coke eliminates most of the shoveling, shoveling and carrying out of ashes. Furnace tending is made simple and easy.
8. Saves Your Furnace
Fuels that give a lot of ash fill up the ash pit and shut out the air. Thus grates are damaged. Koppers Coke has so little ash that this danger is practically eliminated. It's so easy to keep the ash pit clean. Use Coke and your furnace will give you better results than ever before.
9. More Carbon—
It's the carbon in fuel that gives heat. And Koppers Coke is almost all carbon. That's why you get more heat for your money.
10. Less Fuel—
Because it gives so much better heat, you'll burn less of Koppers Coke. Thus you save money in two ways—less fuel at less cost.
11. Easy To Handle—
Koppers Coke is so much lighter—so much easier to handle. A child can take care of it.
12. No Soot—
No smoke or soot. Koppers Coke is a clean-burning fuel.

HIBERNIANS OPEN
LOCAL CAGE SEASON

(By T. M. Juno)

The A. O. H. Basketball League opened last evening in Hibernian Hall. In the initial contest of the evening the Celtics, piloted by Tom Holden, barely nosed out "Doc" Potts' Columbians, 22-15. In the second set of the evening the Shamrocks had no trouble in downing the Gaels, 42-24.

The first fray of the evening was closely played throughout, the winner not being decided until the final whistle had blown and then had it not been for the sharp-shooting of "Jimmy" Lake a different tale might have to be written on the game. Lake hit the cords for seven double-deckers and a foul for a total of 15 points. All of the Celtics' players scored at least one point. John Brady and Marty Fallon scored thirteen of the losers' fifteen points, the other two tallies going to Hugh McGinley.

A renewal of last year's bitter battles was exhibited in the second game of the evening when the Shamrocks managed by Neal McDevitt very decisively defeated "Jimmy" Dolan's Gaels, 42-24.

It must be remembered that last year the Gaels, playing under the name of the White Elephants, twice beat the Shamrocks to win the second half of the league and in each fray only a margin of a few points separated the winners and losers.

The Shamrocks completely outplayed the Gaels in every stage of the game and from the opening whistle it was all to the "Shams." George Dougherty and E. Dugan with 15 and 4 points, respectively, starred for the winners, while Lawler and B. Thompson were high scorers for the losers, with 6 points each.

Miss Miriam Waters, daughter of the late James Waters, of Germantown and Seaside Park, also a former resident of Bristol, was married to John McCready, of New York, formerly of Philadelphia, on Saturday morning in St. Catherine's Catholic Church at Seaside Park. The couple was married at 10 o'clock with a mass with Rev. Father Beed Hess officiating.

Miss Frances Kolston, of Norristown, a cousin of the bride, was the bridesmaid, and the best man was John Reynolds, of Philadelphia. Anthony Stagevaal, of Seaside Park, was an usher.

The bride was gown in white lace over satin. The gown was modelled on the close-fitting lines, long tight sleeves, round neckline, and the long full skirt was cut with a train. Her veil of tulle was cap shape trimmed with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

Former Resident Here Is

The bridesmaid looked attractive in a gown of red transparent velvet, fashioned on close-fitting lines, low neckline and short sleeves trimmed with fur. Black hat, gloves and slippers completed her costume and she carried a bouquet of yellow tea roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Hamilton Hotel where guests were laid for 56 guests. The guests attending the wedding were from New York, Philadelphia, Norristown, Atlantic City and Bristol. Those attending from Bristol were Mr. and Mrs. James Archer, Mr. and Mrs. Neal McGinley, Mrs. Mary Callahan and Mrs. William Dougherty. Following a honeymoon trip, the newlyweds will reside in their new home on Long Island. Mr. McCready is employed in New York City.

The bride resided in Bristol for several years and is very well known here.

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

BY HARRISON CARROLL
HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 30.—Just as R-K-O-Pathe officials were at their wits' ends, someone suggested Ben Lyon to fill the part left vacant by the tragic death of Robert Williams.

Going into fast action, the studio yesterday got Ben's name on a contract, and he goes into the production immediately. Since Williams was taken ill, the company has been shooting scenes in which his character did not appear. The picture now is practically completed except for these sequences. Of course, you recall that Connie Bennett is the star of the film and that its title is "Lady with a Past."

NOT SO LUCKY.

He asked me not to use his name, but another Hollywood leading man received a hurry call from a studio this week to fill a part left vacant by illness. Reporting to the director, he was requested to go home, put on a dark suit and shave his mustache. After a few objections, he consented and dashed away so he would not hold up the company. During his absence, someone thought to ask the producer about the substitution. He refused to okay it.

So when the leading man returned he found he not only was out of a mustache, but also out of a job.

LATEST GOSSIP.

Marlene Dietrich is going to miss Christmas in Berlin—the first time she has ever failed to celebrate the holiday at home. Her picture will not be finished until the first week in December, and she has to wait over another two weeks to see if there are any retakes. She's happy to have her daughter with her, at least. Alec Francis is expected to be well enough by Monday to finish his part at M. G. M. in "Mata Hari." He recently disappeared after being stricken with amnesia. Jackie Cooper has it in for Paramount. They promised to let him off to see the U. S. C. Stanford football game, but changed their mind. Monroe Owsley is out of the sanitarium, and was sufficiently recovered from his nervous breakdown to take a test this week. Stephen Ames, husband of Adrienne Ames, is in Hollywood for a two weeks visit. Carole Lombard has started work on "No One Man." It is her first appearance before the camera in five months.

IN THE NEWS.
Now that Fox has named its "debutante stars," it has to do right by them. Linda Watkins, blonde recruit from the stage, will have an important role in "Charlie Chan's Chance." This is another of the Earl Derr Biggers' detective stories, with Warner Oland again playing the Oriental sleuth.

PAIR TEAMED AGAIN.

After looking at "Under Eighteen," Warner officials have cast Marian Marsh and Warren William together once more in "The Church Mouse." Roy Del Ruth and Joe Jackson are now in New York looking at the play, which features Bert Lytell and Ruth Gordon. They will return within ten days to start writing the adaptation and dialogue.

Since John Barrymore picked her for Trilby in "Svengali," Marian Marsh has played in five pictures for Warners. She was elevated to stardom in "Under Eighteen."

DID YOU KNOW

That Edward G. Robinson served in the U. S. Navy during the World War?

MEN PARTICIPATE IN FINE HUNTING TRIPS

A number of Bristolians have taken advantage of the advent of deer hunting season, and have packed their traps and left for territory where they hope to bag an antlered trophy.

"I suppose I'm like most people who read the newspapers..."

"I DON'T read all the ads, any more than I read the whole of any newspaper or magazine. But I do read a good many of them."

"Recently I've been reading more than usual, and I certainly like what Chesterfield has to say and the way it is said. I would probably like the cigarette, too, but somehow I just haven't got 'round to trying it."

"Come to think of it, I can't tell you why I smoke this other cigarette. It's more from habit, I suppose, than for any real reason."

"I'd never thought about it before, but last night, at a party, I noticed eight of my friends—five men and three girls—who had changed to Chesterfields. They told me that Chesterfields are milder, that they taste better, that they just seem to satisfy."

"Of course, cigarettes are a small thing, but, after all, they give me a lot of pleasure, and a cigarette like Chesterfield that you hear such good things about, must be good. Anyway, I've just bought my first package of Chesterfields, and I believe I'll find them just like the ads say—milder—taste better—pure—satisfy."
